NEWS FROM THE COUNTRY.

PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY.

The fall fairs having about all taken place we settle down once more to the usual routine of every day life.

Two or three cases of diphtheria are reported in the family of Mr. James Fietz, High Shore.

Mr. Z. Herrington, Picton, is slowly recovering from his recent serious illness.

Dr. Evans, Picton, was badly injured on Friday last by his horse becoming unmanageable, when going down the hill at Glenora, throwing him from the buggy.

Mr. Henry Curry, Belleville, visited friends at Milford, and Picton, last week.

There were three thousand five hundred and fifty entries made this fall for the Picton fair, one thousand more than last year.

J. L. Boyes, Napanee, exhibited two fine colts at the fair and each carried away a red ticket.

Miss Maggie Thorne, Picton, intends visiting friends in Buffalo, N. Y., this week.

MAHLBANK.

The farmers are beginning to peel the husks off the corn. The boys are kept busy these nights going to-husking bees.

Whooping cough is quite prevalent in our village just at present.

Mr. R. Allen has been attending some of the fairs in Hastings. We understand he was to visit our former preacher, Mr. Moran, while he was away.

There is to be a tea meeting in the Methodist church here on the twenty-third of this month. Of course it is to be a grand affair.

Dan Master's machine was at Henry Allons, Satu day. He is going back over the jobs that he left in the first part of the season.

Our doctor is kept very busy just now. We notice many young men apparently sound physically going towards his office. His medicine must be sweet to take, That's a good dodge boys.

Visitors:—Mr. and Miss Colt, of Tyendinaga, at Mr. Richard Marlin's, Miss Edith Fenwick, at W. J. Wilsons, Mr. and Mrs. Frizzell, at Dr. Burrows.

MOSCOW.

A peculiar case has recently come into court in which the judge is the suitor. A similar one has previously been judged.

Our neighborhood has been well represented at all the fall fairs. A few of the "rustic playfairs" attended the opera house in Napanee on the evening of September 23rd, while others took in the baby show on the previous evening.

A striking instance of grappling after too much and losing all was seen at Harrowsmith fair, when one of our farmers was "taken in" to the amount of $20.

Miss Maggie Millsap took a private car to the fair.

We understand that two amiable young ladies were seriously injured in a horse fracas. The circumstances are not generally known, but it is supposed they were trying to ride the animal when he threw them.

Vanluven Bros. have put in an entirely new stock of goods and are selling at rock bottom prices.

Mr. Clark is conducting a series of revival services in the M. E. church this week.

HAWLEY.

Threshing and root gathering is the order of the day.

Our school is progressing favorably under the able management of Mr. F. Bowerman.

A great number from here attended the funeral of Mrs. Hough, of G. etna, on Sunday last.

We are glad to state Mrs. John Milling is slowly recovering after a severe illness.

Mr. William Alcombrack lost a valuable horse which was some time ago struck by lightning.

Mr. Fred Crichton has his brick house about completed.

We are sorry to state that Mr. Thomas Parks has rented his farm and intends moving to Kingston in the spring.

Mr. James Meyers and wife was the guest of their daughter, Mrs. Samuel Parks on

CROYDON.

Lots of rain, weather cool.

On Sept. 27th Mrs. J. Quinn presented her husband with a bouncing baby boy.

A little stranger has arrived at Mr. A. Campbell's, a young son.

Roeve Wilde and Deputy Weese were at council on Monday and report a busy session.

Chas. McMahon has a spring's calf that tips the scales at 425 pounds. Who can beat it?

We were pleased to see E. J. Wagar and bride among us on Monday. The happy couple intend to reside in Enterprise.

Miss Teskey, of Belleville, is spending a few weeks with her uncle Mr. Joseph Teskey and other friends. We will miss you Stella.

Russel Howard, of Odessa, paid us a short visit recently.

A. McKeown, of British Columbia, paid a short visit to his brother, Mr. S. McKeown, of this place.

J. Campbell, of California, was in Croydon renewing acquaintances recently.

Rev. Finlay delivered an excellent sermon on Sunday.

Prayer meeting on Tuesday conducted by Thos. Furrs.

We hear there is some talk of a Xmas tree for the S. S.

Adam Campbell and Thos. Furrs were fishing on Friday night last and got a bag full each, over seventy in all.

Fred Stinson, of Centreville, has been spending a few days with his daughter, Mrs. John Hunter.

F. Bartlett, of Napanee, was in Croydon on Tuesday night.

Mr. Jchu F. Kellar has gone to the back lakes for fish.

Three men were out for a two day's fish and get ten up for one dinner. Better luck next time.

Patrick Dwyer has made some large sales of sheep this week.

Jimmy Weese is getting in new goods. Call and inspect.

Miss Mabel Galbraith is spending a few weeks with friends in Prince Edward.

Sir Charles and Lady Tupper celebrated their golden wedding yesterday.

Robert Carpenter, of Hagersville, is confined in Brantford gaol, charged with the murder of his wife.

Jas. Walters, Napanee, has received intelligence that his eldest sister, who resided in London, England, is dead.

A Kingston alderman has wagered that Bryan and free silver will be winners at the presidential elections in the United States. The stakes are $100 against $400.

Li Hung Chang arrived at Yokohama by the Empress of India on Sunday and will travel the rest of the journey in a Chinese man-of-war sent on to meet him.

An action is in progress in Toronto between Fred McCloskey and John Hogan, of Kingston, about the possession of a Kingston race horse named St. John. An order was made in the action striking out a motion by Hogan to compel Fred McCloskey to put up security for costs, and yesterday an appeal was taken by Mr. Hogan against this order.

Our watch repairing department is under the special supervision of F. Chinnack himself, who is a practical watchmaker of many years experience. He does not do as many others do, hand the work over to a paid watchmaker to repair because he has a personal knowledge of it himself. All our work is guaranteed to give satisfaction. Remember the place—F. Chinnack's Jewelry Store.

Interesting Description of How It Was Made and Its Customs.

Many people doubtless know that upon the accession of a new monarch to the throne of England a new seal is struck and the old one is cut into four pieces and deposited in the Tower of London. In former times the fragments of these great seals were distributed among certain poor people of religious houses. When Her Majesty Queen Victoria ascended the throne of England, the late Benjamin Wyon, R.A., the chief engraver of Her Majesty's mint, designed the beautiful work of the present great Seal of England. The details of the design are:
obverse, an equestrian figure of the King, attended by a page, Her Majesty wearing a habit flowing and sumptuous robe, and a collar of the Order of the Garter. In her right hand she bears the sceptre, and on her head is placed a regal tiara. The at-
hand, looks up to the Queen, who is gracefully restraining the impatient charger, which is richly decorated with plumes and trappings. The legend
"Victoria Dei Gratia Britanniarum Regina, Fidei Defensor," is engraved in Gothic letters, the spaces between the words being filled with heraldic roses. The reverse side of the seal shows the Queen, royally robed and crowned, holding in her right hand
the sceptre, and in her left the orb, seated upon a throne beneath a niched Gothic canopy; on each side is a figure of Justice and Religion; and in the exergue the royal arms and crown, the whole encircled by a wreath or border of oak and roses.

The seal itself is a silver mould in two parts, technically called a pair of dies. When an impression is to be taken or cast, the parts are closed to receive the melted wax, which is poured through an opening at the top of the seal. As each impression is attached to a document by a ribbon or slip of parchment, its ends are put into the seal before the wax is poured in, so that when the hard impression is taken from the dies the ribbon or parchment is neatly affixed to it. The impression of the seal is six inches in diameter and three-fourths of an inch

The coffee tree culture of Gaudebut very slow. It takes at least five years to establish a good plantation

HAY BAY.
Owing to the absence of your correspondent I will give you a few items concerning the business of our thriving little place called Hay Bay.

Miss Emma and Lulu Williams are visiting at Edgar Knight's, Napanee at present.
Fred Smith, Esq., of Napanee, spent Thursday evening, the guest of G. Post, of this place.

Our annual peach social that was so strongly talked of fell through itself and there it hangs in talk yet.

Quite a few of our young gentlemen accompanied by their kind ladies attended the Pink Tea given by the Ladies' Aid Society at Hayburn on Thursday evening last. They all report a jolly time and lots to eat and drink, and the programme excellent.

The Rev. MacDonald, of Napanee, is at present conducting the services in our Presbyterian church, the congregation is rather small of late.

The heavy gale of wind that blew on Tuesday last raised the water four feet on the level in the bay and set a number of boats adrift.

The fisherman all report a very successful season this year. Pike and bass being very plentiful.

We have had as high as three quilting-bees in one week that's all right girls, three at a lick till you get nine, and a stitch in time saves nine, and getting married is very fine.

Mr. Edgar Knight, of Napanee, spent Sunday last the guest of D. F. Williams of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore, of Little Creek, was the guest of his brother J. A.
Moore on Sunday last.

Rumr says a wedding soon.

TAMWORTH.
Mr. W. A. Fuller is spending a few days in Montreal.

Miss Lucy Wheeler is visiting her brother in Watertown.

Mrs. Dr. Wilson, Miss Jones, and Mrs.
Reynolds, have gone to Cincinnati on a pleasant trip.

Mrs. James Shields and Miss Caswell will leave for New York next week where they will spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kennedy, Mr. John Wagar and Mr. Miles Wagar left last week for a trip to the North West.

Mr. C. G. Coxall has completed his new storehouse, which is quite an addition to his building.

Mr. W. Coxall and son Charlie, of Napanee paid a flying visit to his brother on Monday last.

The new vestry of Christ Church is now completed and is a great improvement to the church. It is nicely fitted up and will be used for bible class and week-day services.

We had a disastrous fire west of Erin-ville last Thursday. Mr. Lynch had his house consumed with nearly all the contents. He was not at home at the time and there were only small children at home.
We are very sorry for his loss.

Mr. J. Aylsworth is about to finish coating his residence with brick.

Miss Gardiner, of Kingston and Miss
Burke, of Toronto, are the guests of Mrs.
D. E. Rose.

Mrs. Thomas Miller and family are about to leave Tamworth. They will reside in Ottawa. Mrs. Miller has been a resident of this place for a number of years. She was a member of the Methodist church and has always been ready to assist in church work of any kind. A number of her friends gathered at her home on Monday evening to bid her farewell. A very pleasant evening was spent among old acquaintances. We are sorry to lose her from our midst and wish her success in her new home.

PURCHASING ROME.
(From Harper's Weekly.)

It is suggested that the Roman Catholics of Christendom shall subscribe a billion dollars to buy Rome and a near-by seaport for the Pope. The belief is expressed that the Italian government might sell the property without serious detriment to its political integrity, and that the money could be used to great advantage in relieving Italy of part of the burden of her public debt. It is not proposed to turn over the principal to the venders, but to place it in trust, and to pay its annual proceeds into the Italian treasury as long as the Pope remains undisturbed in the papal territory.
The plan is a very pretty one, and there are those who think the money might be raised, and that King Humbert's government would appreciate the advantages of such a bargain. But would Rome be the best purchase the Pope could make with the money? Chicago would take him vastly cheaper and give him port privileges on Lake Michigan, but she could not engage to make him monarch of an American township at any price. But there is Constantinople, an excellent city, where popes have lived before, full of ready-made churches built by Christians and nearly ripe now for reconsecration. Constantinople seems liable to come into the market any day. If the Pope could buy it of the Sultan that would be a deal worth subscribing to, and worth turning a page of history to record.

What He Thinks of Paine's Celery Compound.

The following letter from Mr. Wm.
Davidson, of No. 2 Oliver street, Quebec,
P.Q., is so very plain and lucid that it requires no explanatory remarks. His object is to draw the attention of the sick and afflicted to that fountain and source of life from which he received supplies of new health. He says:

"It is with sincere pleasure and gratitude I refer to your Paine's Celery Compound, and the wondrous blessings that I received from its use.

"To tell the truth, before using it I had little confidence in it, but concluded if it did me no good it could not make me any worse than I was.

"I had suffered for years from indigestion, liver complaint, and kidney disease, and began with Paine's Celery Compound
in order to give it a thorough testing.
After a fair use of the Compound I am as well as ever I was, and all my troubles have disappeared, and I am enjoying good health.

"Your medicine is a wonderful one; it is far superior to all others, as it truly gives life, and puts the entire system in a healthy condition. As a purifier of the blood I find it has no equal, and I heartily recommend its use to all sufferers."

Can stronger proof than the above be required to convince any sick and diseased man or woman that Paine's Celery Compound is the best medicine in the world?

Surely, dear reader, you will admit that it is worthy of a trial. You are seeking for new health, and therefore need the very best. Be sure you ask for and use only "Paine's," the only genuine celery preparation in the world.

The Napanee Express

NAPANEE, FRIDAY OCT. 9, 1896.

THE practice of presenting yearly each member of the Commons and Senate with a leather trunk and box of stationery holds good this year, but will hereafter be discontinued.

THE cabmen of Ottawa must have found times a trifle dull during this session of parliament as compared with former ones. Quite a few members who formerly ran up big bills for cab fares and charged same to the government, either had to walk or pay for their ride out of their own pocket, a decidedly new and unpleasant experience.

THERE has been considerable waiting over the dismissal of the Rev. H. C. Dixon, the stamp man at Toronto. Mr. Dixon seems to us to have the prevailing trait of Torontonians, namely, a desire to absorb all the good things. There are a lot of people who are never satisfied, the more they have the more they want, and if any little piece of "pap" is taken away from them, what a howl ensues. Mr. Dixon is well off, and does not need any assistance. His successor is poor and does need a little help.

DURING the session of Parliament just held at Ottawa there was a very plain statement made as to the public works of the Dominion, which were represented as being in a very bad state of repair, although large sums of money had been paid for the work and for maintenance. If the pavement in front of the Napanee postoffice is a fair sample of how work was scamped, the public works of Canada are a very poor asset against the very large indebtedness. The granolithic pavement cost $1,509.55, in addition to a "little bill" for preparation. Here are the

BROGUES AND SLANG.

THEIR POWERFUL INFLUENCE IN MODIFICATIONS IN OUR LANGUAGE

A Wide Field for Speculation—The Great Changes of the Past Glanced at in Attempting to Forecast the Future of the English Spoken Tongue.

What the English language has been in the past, and indeed how it came to be at all, has been made the subject of innumerable treatises, and, in fact, of textbooks to be studied in the common schools; but there remains a wide field for speculation as to the changes which the language may undergo in the future, says a writer in the Kansas City Star.

It is a reasonable supposition that whatever has changed may change further, and we all know that English has undergone numerous alterations. The Lord's prayer in the sort of English Wycliff used would undoubtedly be intelligible to heavenly ears, but hardly to those of a modern English-speaking person. We talk about the English of Shakespeare as being our own, yet some ingenious person has supported the theory that the English of Shakespeare's time as spoken was equivalent to the Irish brogue of today and that Hamlet's soliloquy when first pronounced "in public on the stage" sounded as "Shamus O'Brien" does now when given by the ordinary elocutionist. The historical theory underlying this is, of course, that the Irish continue to speak English as they heard it when extensively introduced in Ireland in the days of Elizabeth, while in England and other English-speaking countries it has changed to the "English as she is spoke" at present, whatever that may be.

The English language, more especially as spoken, has suffered change, and why should it not? An American grandfather and grandson seated at the same table do not speak the language with precise similarity, and why should they? The people who complain of the "corruption" and "perversion" of the English language, if by those expressions they mean its change, murmur without sufficient cause. A language is but a human instrument, which may be changed, amended, enlarged and restricted at the will of those who use it in their business. Possibly if Chaucer could revisit the earth he might pick up a volume of Tennyson's poems and conclude that English had been mightily "perverted" and "corrupted" since the time he wrote verses. But would he have any just ground for complaint?

But admitting that the English language, as we know it in America, has yet to undergo change, what is likely to be the nature of the change or changes? There is a colloquial expression, "He talks like a book," and it may be said that the great change to be made in colloquial English, in America at least, will be in the general conformation of spoken English to "book English." The effect of this will be the gradual dying out and loss of sectional and local dialects, which will be a loss indeed. The world will be the more monotonous when the man from Maine speaks the English language with the same pronunciation and accent as the man from Alabama; when the colored American from "Cherokee Georgia" speaks the same English as his brother in black from Savannah, neither of them using what we vaguely call the "negro dialect" of to-day. Yet there is reason to believe that such a time will come, and from a very evident cause—viz the establishment throughout the country, and in every part and portion of it, of the same system of common schools. Why should not a generation speak alike or approximate a common standard which uses the same spelling book and reader? The "book English" being the same throughout the United States, spoken English will approach conformity.

The English language is not merely a changing language, but a growing one. Every new edition of every standard dictionary is proof of this. With the years we gather words and words. Are we to infer from this that the

A SCIENCE TRIUMPH.

AN ECCENTRIC MILLIONAIRE'S LUXURIOUS SUMMER HOME.

Living Beneath a Lake and Breathing Air Supplied Through Mammoth Artificial Water Lilies—An Ambitious Scheme to Study Wild Nature.

The latest luxury in which millionaires may indulge is described by Truth this week. An Englishman, who has a lake upon his estate, recently caused it to be drained, and in the deepest part he had a house built, which contains smoking, dining and servants' rooms. The framework of the house is iron. The floor is of stone, resting upon a foundation of concrete. The sides and roof are composed of thick plate glass. There is a passage under the water from the boat house to the glass house, and air is obtained through large clumps of artificial water lilies which rest upon the surface of the lake.

It is indescribably pleasant to sit in one of the rooms upon a warm day. The air is cool; there is no sound to be heard, and it is interesting to watch the fish swimming around, attracted by the glare of the electric lights.

The house cost comparatively little to build. The owner contemplates a more ambitious scheme. He has two square miles of forest, which he intends to inclose by a wide, deep trench, a strong iron railing and high stone wall. He will then turn loose into the inclosure every sort of wild animal that he can procure, lions, tigers, elephants, etc., in order to ascertain if they can live at large in this climate and without unduly interfering with each other. There is to be a network of underground passages, leading to numerous stone towers in different places in the forest, and from these he intends to watch the animals and study their habits when in a comparatively wild state.

The Most Economical ...House Warmer

The "Kelsey" Corrugated Warm Air Generator.

Any ordinary Hot Air Furnace will produce heat if you will only supply enough fuel. The "Kelsey" has several special and valuable features but most important is that it will give more heat with less fuel and is the most durable heater made.

The "Kelsey" fire pot being constructed of several upright, tubular, corrugated, cast iron sections (see cut) around which the fire passes and up through which the cold air passes while being heated, and this entire section being wrapped with a heavy steel casing which becomes heated by the fire striking it when passing down outside of upright sections towards smoke pipe, it in turn warms the air that passes up between this steel casing and the galvanized iron casing, this explains why the "Kelsey" has three times more radiating surface and warm air capacity than an ordinary furnace. The "Kelsey" heats every room evenly, wherever located, with a nice, mild, healthful warm air that will not injure your furniture.

The "Kelsey" will heat rooms 60 feet distant.

The "Kelsey" does not heat your cellar.

The "Kelsey" is absolutely gas and dust proof.

The Baby's Photograph.

Never take a child to the photographer's at a time which interferes with his meals or sleep.

Do not scold the child if it is restless; a tear-stained face often takes a long time to smile.

Dark dresses are best used on bright days; dark velvets should be especially avoided at such times.

Do not dress up the child; its everyday clothes are more comfortable and are more likely to induce a pleasant expression.

As the photographer's aim is always to secure the best result, leave the final posing to him; he will usually be guided, however, by your wishes.

Do not bring all your friends and relations to watch the photographing operations; the fewer people to attract attention in the studio, the more likelihood is there of the result being perfect.

Millinery and Bodices

Oats, wheat and even corn leaves are seen in some early autumn millinery, notably in hats that come out from London.

Boleros and jacket bodices which have been of lace through the summer now show in velvet to be worn over vests of sheer batiste embroidered in Renaissance patterns.

The separate bodice of silk is down in the list of autumn must-haves, again to replace the faithful cambric and batiste waist. The only novelty about them is that they will tone rather than contrast with their accompanying skirts.

FROM THE ASHES TO A LARGER LIFE.

The extensive establishment of the proprietors of Dodd's Kidney Pills, at Nos. 1 and 3 Jarvis street, with its contents, excepting the offices, was entirely destroyed by fire on the afternoon of the 15th ult. The fire broke out in an adjoining warehouse, but spread so rapidly that in less than ten minutes the employees of the Dodd's Medicine Co., from the laboratory, the advertising and the shipping departments, were all in panic flight for their lives. The perfect safety of all these persons once assured, and while more than 250 gross of Dodd's Kidney Pills, together with labels, wrappers and tons of advertising were being consumed, interest and effort all centered in the rescue from the advertising rooms of a mass of seemingly old and worthless letters. These, as afterwards learned, proved to be the accumulations of years consisting of thousands of testimonials from persons cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and dating from the inception of the business up to the day of the fire. These records of triumph, these proofs of the supreme merits of this great kidney treatment were the most precious of all the possessions of the firm, and were to be saved if possible, as they fortunately were, at the last possible moment. On the invitation of the president of the company a reporter of The News visited the quarters, located at Nos. 6 and 8 Bay street, where new premises have been promptly opened. Here a rapid glance revealed many busy hands rushing the several details of completion of new goods to fill orders continuously arriving from all points in Canada, the United States and other parts of the world. Judging from the accumulated orders on file, of which the reporter got a glimpse, the output of Dodd's Kidney Pills is already almost beyond the conception, and one can easily understand that their merit alone can create such an incredible demand. Characteristic of the energy and enterprise of the Dodd's Medicine Co., it may be mentioned that, though absent in Buffalo during the fire, the manager was made aware of the probable extent and outcome of the disaster, and while the premises were still burning orders had been wired and goods from New York and other points were speeding towards Toronto for the reproduction of Dodd's Kidney Pills, so that no order should remain unfilled.—Toronto News.

the years we gather words and words. Are we to infer from this that the ordinary vocabulary of the talking citizen is to be greatly increased in the future? Not necessarily. The added words are largely technical and scientific, resulting from the immense acquisitions of knowledge in the field of the arts and sciences. The list of words which an English-speaking man absolutely must have to express joy, grief, hatred, contempt, affection and so on has not been materially increased. This may be seen in the history of profanity. Our ancestors indulged in imprecations and elaborate blasphemies unknown in this age, but what may be called "plain swearing" is in the same terms as for ages past and wherever English is spoken.

Com Paul.

Here is another characteristic story about the President of the Transvaal. In the days when Johannesburg was merely Ferreira's mining camp, Kruger was one day riding over the Witwatersrand in ordinary boucher attire. He sat saddled near a wagon owned by a German. The Teuton did not recognize the President, and held forth on the many things he would do were he ruler of the state. Suddenly Com Paul, to the great astonishment of the German, who was a very small man, took off his coat, and holding it out toward the stranger, said: "Put this on." "But," replied the latter, "it's too big." Just so," replied His Honor with a grim smile, "I'm Paul Kruger and it's not too big for me."

And now it is claimed that the jaw-bones of civilized peoples are gradually becoming attenuated, chiefly owing to the prolonged use of knives and forks. There need be no fear, however, that we will lose the use of the jaws; the habit of chewing gum will soon restore these portions of our anatomy to their pristine strength.

Halycon Days was a name anciently given to seven days before and the same number after the winter solstice, when the halycon, induced by the beauty of the weather, laid her eggs in nests built in the rocks close by the brink of the sea. The halycon, or alcedo, is in ornithology a kingfisher, a genus of the class aves, order piscivore.

Pavements made of granulated cork mixed with asphalt have proved successful after two years' trial in London and Vienna. They are never slippery, are odorless, and do not absorb moisture, besides being clean, elastic and lasting. Near the Great Eastern station in London the wear in two years amounts to about one-eighth of an inch.

An interesting library collection at Stanford University is the "Railroad Library," the gift of Timothy Hopkins, ex-treasurer of the Southern Pacific. There are in this collection of railway literature about 4000 books and 5000 pamphlets relating exclusively to railroads and their interests; and in addition to this the library receives currently sixty periodicals devoted to the same subject. Of these twenty-seven are published in the United States, ten in London, eight in Paris, seven in different states in Germany, two in Vienna and one each in Turin and Rome, besides which Belgium, Switzerland, Australia and New Zealand are also represented.

Fire insurance companies were in existence in Italy in the twelfth century, and they were established in England in the sixteenth century.

During the year 1895 Texas led the states in the building of railroads, with 209 miles; Indian Territory came next, with 151 miles, and Pennsylvania third with 102 miles. No other states showed an increase of 100 miles.

Runaway horses are unknown in Russia. No one drives there without having a thin cord with a running noose around the neck of the animal. When the horse bolts, the cord is pulled, and the horse stops as soon as it feels the pressure on its windpipe.

New Insulating Material.

A new insulating material is being introduced to the electrical trade. It consists of powdered silice, a mineral resembling mica in its pure state, which is packed in wrought iron pipes, in which is centralized the electrical conductor. The lengths of pipe are joined by very tight sleeve couplings, and the outlets are hermetically sealed with a mica cap and shellac, through which the conductor projects. The silice has some properties which render it of special value for electrical work. It is a remarkable non-conductor of heat and an excellent electric insulator, and it is stated by the projectors of this new enterprise that they have on a test succeeded in fusing a wire insulated by this method, but since the insulation surrounding the wire was incombustible there was really no place for the fused metal to run, and after the current was withdrawn the metal resolidified, and the metallic and electrical continuity of the wire was restored to its original condition. Silice in this form is said to be remarkably non-hydroscopic; therefore there is no danger of the insulation being impaired by moisture.

Treatment of Burns.

Dr. Poggel, a French surgeon, has found that the addition of a few teaspoonfuls of potassium nitrate to a bath, into which the burnt part is plunged, will quickly cause cessation of the pain. After a time the water becomes heated and the pain returns, but again subsides on the addition of another quantity of salt. Professor Vergely has obtained good results by covering the burnt parts with a paste prepared by mixing calcined magnesia with a certain quantity of water and allowing it to dry on the skin, renewing it as soon as it becomes detached. Under this treatment it is said that the wounds heal well and pain is prevented.

Asbestos in Boot Soles.

It is proposed to use asbestos in the soles of boots. Asbestos wool, pressed by hydraulic force into thin sheets, water-proofed on one side, is to be inserted as the middle sole. Asbestos is a non-conductor of heat, and, in conjunction with a water-proof material, will have the effect of counteracting the influence of heat, cold and moisture.

NEW TAILOR-MADE GIRL.

There is a new tailor-made girl this fall. She has lost much of her severity of style and has actually consented to give up her linen collars and cuffs and her much-beloved waistcoat.

The new tailor-made gown, fashioned strictly up-to-date, must have the small sleeve and the plain skirt. But then, if made severely plain, it would be a costume few women would dare attempt. The dictators of fashion have realized this, hence the new tailor-made gown for the fall of '96.

All the best tailor-made gowns this year have what is called the plain skirt. It hangs straight and plain in front, without gores, the fullness all drawn toward the back. Last season's skirt, even though tailor-made, had many a ripple.

The basque is another novel feature of the new tailor-made gown. It fits rather tightly over the hips, rippling a trifle at the back, or it opens directly in the back, folding over in reverse, which are frequently fastened with tiny buttons.

The collar is perhaps the most unique part of the costume. Instead of being an inconspicuous coat collar as of old, it is a decidedly flaring affair, well stiffened and most conspicuous.

silk is used for this purpose. A good quality of changeable taffeta is most in favor. It will frequently happen this fall that the lining of a tailor gown will be equally as expensive as the material itself.

The boucle cloths will be worn, but, of course, they are not classed with the fall novelties. It is only in the arrangement of their soft, silky loops that they differ from last year—then the loops were evenly distributed over the material, now they are arranged in patches.

Ottoman cloth promises to be one of the most popular materials of the coming season. It is shown in a great variety of designs. The ottoman cloth in two colors is a distinct novelty. The foundation is generally of some light shades with the ribs in a dark color. The ribbing is so close together that but little of the ground work shows. The plain ottomans come in both coarse and fine ribs, and make serviceable as well as charming gowns.

New Silk Waists.

Now that the shirtwaist days are over one would suppose that the band necktie, so closely associated with it, would also take its departure. But this fall this chic little necktie has taken a new lease of life, owing to the popularity of the changeable silk waists.

The newest come in a variety of color combinations. Changeable golden brown and green silk makes an effective waist, also deep blue shading into a soft olive green.

The majority of these silk shirt waists are made without lining, but for wear during the cooler autumn days they may be bought not only lined, but as stiffly boned as an ordinary cloth bodice.

These waists are the present substitute of the cotton shirt waist, and are made in exactly the same design. In addition to this they are worn with a stiff linen collar and cuffs. They do not button down the front, but are made to be fastened with studs.

TO MARKET PRODUCE

FORESIGHT AND HINDSIGHT BOTH REQUIRED FOR SUCCESS.

The Best Grain Market the Farmer Can Have is His Own Barnyard—The Shortest Possible Time a Large Factor in Satisfactory Results.

This takes one away back, many months before the harvest. The first requisite toward the profitable selling of the farmer's produce is having first-class produce to sell. To insure this the farmer should use only the best seed, begin planning to sell with the first furrow he plows, furnish crop best plant food and best cultivation. So with fruit. The one who is mulching, spraying, pruning and cultivating is even then taking the first steps toward selling well. Nothing grown on the farm responds so readily to early fostering care as fruit. Berries of all kinds will be larger, firmer, freer from imperfections, while disease and insects will be kept in abeyance. Apples will be free from the work of the codling moth, larger and finer quality, and thus they sell themselves.

Unquestionably the best market for grain is the farmer's own barnyard, poultry yard and pig pen. All cereals ought to be thus used. Sold as pork and beef, corn, wheat and other grains bring far more remunerative prices. The profit on fowls can be safely estimated at 100 per cent. A large item of gain is the fertility which the keeping of stock leaves on the farm. A farmer said to me: "I can't afford to sell corn; never sold a bushel in my life. I sell pork."

Beef, pork and mutton must be fitted for the selling in the shortest possible time. There is no margin on long fattening for cattle, pigs or sheep. Then the cost of transporting to market is very much less in this compact form than in the whole animal. Those who cannot follow this ought to sell early. It is rarely wise to hold grain for a higher price. If stored at home, it is safe to count off 10 per cent. for waste, shrinkage, mice, etc. If stored in elevator, storage and insurance must be paid, and loss of interest on the money is an item not to be overlooked. Experience has taught me to sell when produce is ready, unless prices are at the lowest ebb and there is an almost absolute certainty that they will advance.

The marketing of fruits and vegetables requires most careful attention on account of their perishable nature. The best results are obtained by organized effort. In a neighboring town a que part of the costume. Instead of being an inconspicuous coat collar as of old, it is a decidedly flaring affair, well stiffened and most conspicuous. It is a collar suggestive of the Elizabethan ruff, and seems out of place on a tailor-made gown. But Paris favors it; therefore, it will be worn. As the season advances, however, it is sure to be modified.

Fabrics for Fall.

Of course, no display of fall materials would be complete unless the serges were in evidence. They are here this season, just as of old. The coarse-grain serge in deep blue is at present the most in favor.

On account of their perishable nature. The best results are obtained by organized effort. In a neighboring town a fruit growers' association has been perfected. One member is at the depot throughout the season to receive and ship on the early morning train. He ships direct to retailers, thus avoiding commission men. No inferior fruit is handled and the members have won a reputation and a ready sale for their fruit, claiming excellent returns. The quicker the transit from garden to customer, the better the condition and the less danger of loss.

One weak point is allowing too many middlemen to handle our production. The hope of the future for farmers is in co-operation. Another weak point is that farmers do not study the market conditions and changes. One important fact of which the farmer should never lose sight is that to insure success in selling, hard thinking must go right along with hard work, and unless he uses brain as well as muscle he need not expect golden opportunities to roost on the fences in his back yard.—Mrs. M. D. Cole, in Farm and Home.

Some Good Ideas.

Economy in poultry raising should cover not only economy of food and of cash outlay, says a writer in Farm Poultry, but equally important, economy of time.

To illustrate: My henneries and yards are quite a distance from my house, being farther up the hill, which gives to my place its name of Hillside ranch. Being a firm believer in lots of exercise for all classes of fowls I like mine to get out on the runs early and put in a good half hour's work scratching for the millet thrown under the sheds the night before. This I call their sunrise appetizer for the mash which follows later.

I save all the time and all the steps required to go out and open the various houses by having a fish line running from the door of each to my bedroom windows. Each of these lines, strung on screw pulleys on the intervening trees, passes over a pulley outside my window and has a sash weight at that end. At the other end it is attached to a weighted drop door, the only kind I now use, requiring no hinges, catches, etc.

As soon as my alarm clock wakes me I merely pull down the sash weights and immediately from my window I can see a rush of hungry, lively birds from each house. Thus, while I'm rubbing the sleep out of my eyes, then dressing and preparing their mash, they get a half-hour of the liveliest kind of exercise, and all before I set a foot out of doors. At night again I close the houses from my window in the same way.

Again, I use inclined dropboards, hinged to the wall, the bottoms resting on the floor. Above these, three rows of roosts, parallel to the walls, are also hinged to it. Boards and roost are raised and lowered by cords running over pulleys to balance weights outside.

Just here many readers will say: "Tshaw, we've done that for years!" Hold on; here's what I'm coming to. I make the dropboards of clapboards, thin edges uppermost. This makes an incline made up of a series of smaller inclines, which afford, when well dusted, the ideal self-cleaning dropboard. In the morning I raise it a few inches by the cord outside and let it fall sharply, which cleans off the least particle remaining, so that when I enter each house I find the droppings, all so well rolled in dust as to be clean and odorless. These, in this form, it is but the work of a moment to scoop up and drop through a trap door into a box below.

How to Shake Rugs.

When shaking rugs or mats that are small enough to be done with the hands, always hold them by the middle at the sides, not at the ends, for by the latter handling the corners will soon be made to whip out, and the fringe or binding to pull off.

Not Many Changes for the Fall and Winter of 1896-7.

There are fewer modifications in men's dress for the autumn and winter of 1896-7 than there have been for several years. Golf and cycling, perhaps, have had the lion's share of these. The Norfolk jacket has been replaced by the sack-coat for both of the pastimes, and a man may leave his office and with a very few changes of costume can emerge from, say, Well street, as an example, to the downs of Long Island, a full-fledged golfer, or be fully equipped for his afternoon spin on his wheel. As in previous years, the knickerbocker was gradually discarded for riding costume in the city during the afternoon, so will it disappear from the cyclist's wardrobe. The "knicker" is picturesque in summer, and in the vacation season it has been the predominating feature of man's sporting and negligee costume. In winter, unless one lives in the country, the prevailing American idea is to change rapidly without any apparent effort, from every-day dress to that adapted for any pastime or specialty. The leather strap used to keep down long trousers in riding has also found its way into the outfit of the wheelman and golfer. In fact, unless one belongs to a club and is obliged to don a dress of a peculiar cut, it is considered only the mark of an amateur and a greenhorn to appear in a rig for the occasion. At a match this is another story, but ordinarily the very caddies will laugh at you. The club uniforms are, however, quite varied.

The cloth which is to be used for lounge, morning or business suits this autumn, must therefore be as appropriate for golf or wheeling as for the office or the street. Tweeds and chevrons still lead, the colors in favor being grays and browns, and the ever-useful shepherd's plaid. In London the browns have had their day, and the prevailing note in color is gray. There have been already seen in this country some very smart lounge suits made of gray worsted. There is no change in the shape of the sack coat, which is, as it was last year, rather loose to the figure. The trousers are ordinarily wide. The official measurements are about nineteen inches around the knees, and about seventeen and a half at the bottom.—Harner's Bazar.

and decay—generous as only the sun can be in this sordid, miserly world, where bread is but another name for blood, and a rood of growing corn means a pound of human flesh. The sun is the only good thing in nature that always gives to man for nothing but the mere trouble of sitting in the sunshine, and Rome without sunlight is a very grim and gloomy town today, says a writer in The Century.
It is worth the effort of climbing so high. Four hundred feet in the air, you look down on what ruled half the world by force for ages, and on what rules the other half to-day by faith—the greatest center of conquest and of discord and of religion which the world has ever seen. A thousand volumes have been written about it by a thousand wise men. A word will tell you what it has been—the heart of the world. Hither was drawn the world's blood by all the roads that lead to Rome, and hence, it was forced out again along the mighty arteries of the Caesars' road to be spilled in the Caesars' battles—to redden the world with the Roman name. Blood, blood, and more blood, that was the history of old Rome—the blood of brothers, the blood of foes, the blood of martyrs without end. It flowed and ebbed in varying tide at the will of the just and unjust, but there was always more to shed, and there were always more hands to shed it. And so it may be again hereafter, for the name of Rome has a heart-stirring ring, and there has always been as much blood spilled for the names of things as for the things themselves.

Mind Your Liver.
Most of the ailments which are commonly called "bilious" are caused by too much food of a rich nature, and too much drink of a sweet or alcoholic character, combined with far too little exercise in the open air. The liver attempts to get rid of the superfluous materials thrown into the circulation, and, being overworked, rebels, and gout, rheumatism, gravel, dyspepsia, headache and constipation are the outward and visible signs of its inaction in those who live too well a sedentary life, according to the British Medical Journal.
The prescription of a bicycle and the recommendation to use it wisely and well works like a charm in such cases, and in all the sympathetic ailments which arise from too much "acid" in the system. It is interesting to note that cycling sometimes has the effect of thinning the obese and fattening the thin, and this may partly be explained by Murchison's observations that excessive corpulence, as well as excessive corpulence, is often caused by inaction of the liver, and the stimulus of regular exercise, setting the functions of that organ right, causes the disappearance of what was only a symptom.

Texas's Big Hog.
Texas is not only the biggest state in the Union, but lays claim to the biggest hog ever raised in the United States. The hog weighs 1430 pounds, and is 8 feet 3 inches long. He measures 6 feet around the neck, 8 feet around the body, and stands 4 feet 1 inch high. His feet are as large as those of a common ox, and the leg bone larger than that of the largest steer. He is Poland China and red Jersey. He eats corn like an ox; takes the whole ear in his mouth at once, and eats the cob as well as the corn, eating from forty to fifty ears at a time. There seems to be no surplus flesh on him, and physicians who have examined the hog say he can easily be made to reach 2200 pounds. The present owner, T. Ratigan, paid $250 for the hog, and has been offered $1500 for him. He has a fire policy on the animal for $5000. No other hog, it is said, ever reached such tremendous proportions. We expect to learn soon that he has been burned.—Monticello Press.

Not Ashamed to Wash Dishes.
In a recent sketch of Hawthorne by his daughter we are told that in his early married life he helped his wife, who was not strong, by doing the housework. He washed the dishes, cleaned knives and cooked. All this he did without "surly inequities and sudden snarlings." The great romance did not shrink from unromantic work. His good sense put to shame some lesser lights in literature who have counted it a thing common and unclean to work with their hands, even in using the pen.

The Dolley Luncheon.
The "sewing bee" has been revived in a somewhat modernized form in the "Dolley luncheon." All the guests at one of these functions are provided with a square of stamped linen and the silks to embroider it and are set to work. After an hour's stitching, the hostess collects the work, a committee judges of its merits, prizes are awarded, and the luncheon proceeds, the wise giver of the feast having received a more or less valuable addition to her linen chest.

Patti's Jewels.
Mme. Adelina Patti is said to have the handsomest and largest collection of jewels of any of the modern actresses and opera singers. She lately wore in the third act of "La Traviata" a dress covered with precious stones to the value of £100,000. These stones are now in Paris to be reset in the shape of a tulip-like corselet, formed of seven leaves, from which the mousseline de sole bodice will merge all in fluffs and puffs.

She Imbued Western Notions.
Mme. Hanna Korany, who remained in New York for a year after the close of the World's Fair, to which she came as a delegate, has gone back to her home in Syria, so deeply imbued with Western notions that she has started a women's club. # HOUSING THE POOR.

THE WAGE-EARNER HAS A DEEP INTEREST IN THIS SUBJECT.

How Proper Housing Assists to Conserve Earning Power—The Great Drain on a Community's Effectiveness by Reason of Sickness.

What are the wage-earner's special interests in improved housing? In the first place, this class is vitally interested in the conservation of health. Good health means earning power, and, as workmen lead more or less of a hand-to-mouth existence, any loss of earning power is a serious matter, says a writer in The Century. Lord Beaconsfield aptly voiced this truth in an address delivered at the opening of some new blocks of improved tenements in London. He said: "The health of the people is really the foundation upon which all their happiness and their power depends. Few realize the loss of productive energy through sickness brought about by bad living environments. Sir James Paget, the distinguished English physician, estimates that the whole population of England between 15 and 65 years old works in each year 20,000,000 of weeks less than they might if it were not for sickness. He puts down the loss inflicted on wage-earners at nearly $15,000,000 annually. He refers simply to a purely preventable loss. Some years ago the London health authorities instituted inquiries in certain low neighborhoods to estimate the value of labor lost in a year, not by sickness, but from sheer exhaustion induced by unfavorable surroundings. It was found that, upon the lowest average, every worker lost about twenty days in the year from this cause. One might go on multiplying such instances, but it is not necessary to enforce the argument by cumulative citation.

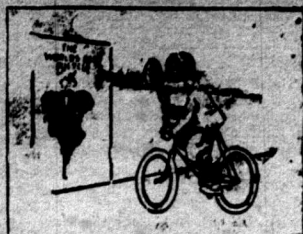

Wage-earners are vitally interested in the passage and enforcement of wise sanitary laws. Bad sanitation entails proportionately worse economic consequences to them than to the more highly favored. They are also more often the victim of sickness and epidemics fostered by insanitary neighborhoods. The workman has a positive interest in using whatever political power he possesses to secure legal remedies against uninhabitable houses through expropriation laws, such as those current in England, and the measure recently put into operation by the Board of Health of New York city under the tenement house law of 1895. Who, if not wage-earners, are interested in the obliteration of rookeries, where the death rate equals 73 in 1000? Whatever promotes better living conditions, no matter whether it comes from legal enactment or private effort, will find support from wage-earners who appreciate their true interests.

Important as are the physical and economic aspects of this question, they are not even the chief considerations. Ethical issues have greater ultimate significance. Many of our moral and social ills are more nearly connected with bad housing than appears upon the surface. Take for example, drunkenness. How absurd to suppose that immoderate liquor-drinking can be suppressed so long as people are left to live in houses where lack of elementary sanitation saps vitality, while noisomeness and unattractiveness impels a search for outside relief. It is entirely unjust to suppose that only a low impulse to debauch or a reckless disregard of family duties leads wage-earners to contract the "saloon habit." The utter dullness, the lack of individuality in tenement house existence, often lie back of the fatal temptation.

Two of my friends, both noble women, live next door to each other; they have each one child, a son. One allowed her son to associate only with those boys she knew to be honorable; the

CAUGHT BY A DREAM.

Ingenious Scheme of a Girl to Bring George to the Point.

He had been paying attention to her for a long time and seemed to be slow in putting into practice any of the beautiful theories of love and domestic comfort and all that sort of thing which he had very often beguiled the happy hours. She thought she might bring him to the scratch, but she did not want to make it altogether too plain. She thought that under a kind of allegory she might "fetch" him. So the next time he came he found her in the garden reclining in a hammock. An open book was lying beside her, her hand carelessly resting upon it; the other hand was gracefully posed pressing her back hair; her eyes were fixed dreamily on the cloudless blue, seen through the interlaced foliage of the tree. He approached. Apparently she heard him not. He looked at the picture a moment while she was steeped in reverie. He spoke.

She gave a little start, and gently rubbed her eyes.
"It is you, George, is it?" she cried softly. "I was dreaming."
"Dreaming! And what were you dreaming of?"

"It was silly—ridiculous. I won't tell you."
"Do tell me."
"No—it was so silly."
"Do tell me what it was."

"Well, you won't laugh at me," she said coyly.
"No, indeed I won't."
"I dreamed that I was married, and I was living in a pretty little cottage all covered with honeysuckle and woodbine and roses, and my husband—"

"Was he like?"
"He was a very nice-looking man. He had beautiful dark hair and eyes, and he was tall."

George made no remark. George was blonde and short.

"But you know, George," she said, after the pause had grown a little awkward, "dreams always go by contraries."

George saw the point—Larks.

SONG OF THE BURDEN BEARER.

Over the narrow footpath
That led from my lowly door,
I went with a thought of the Master,
As oft I had walked before,
My heart was heavily laden,
And with tears my eyes were dim;
But I knew I should lose the burden,
Could I get a glimpse of Him.

Over the trodden pathway,
To the fields all shorn and bare,
I went with a step that faltered,
And a face that told of care,
I had lost the light of the morning,
With its shimmer of sun and dew;
But a gracious look of the Master
Would the strength of morn renew.

While yet my courage wavered,
And the sky before me blurred,
I heard a voice behind me
Saying a tender word,
And I turned to see the brightness
Of heaven upon the road,
And suddenly, lost the pressure
Of the weary, crushing load.

Nothing that hour was altered,
I had still the weight of care;
But I bore it now with gladness,
Which comes of answered prayer,
Not a grief of the soul can fetter,
Nor cloud its vision, when
The dear Lord gives the spirit
To breathe to His will, Amen.

A TELEPATHIC TIP.

A telegram for your, sir.
It was the morning of the Derby day, and I had just looked into the office before starting for Epsom. I was at the time on the staff of the Sporting Courier, and besides giving what is known in the sporting world, as "midday finals," I usually "did" the home meetings.

I took the telegram and tore it open. The message surprised me, for it ran:

"Don Pero is bound to win.—Dixey."
I read it again and again. Don Pero was a rank outsider, and had been looked upon by everybody as not having the slightest chance of a place. For confirmation one had only to look at the "latest London betting" to find that the horse stood at fifty to one. Yet Dixey, the trainer, had never before misled me, and I could not help feeling that there must be something in it. Dixey knew what he was doing, and, as he was always counted as one of the smart men, I determined to do what in another case would have been ridiculous on the face of it.

I sat down at my desk and wrote out my copy. It ran as follows:

"There is no denying the fact that the favorite is in excellent condition, but I think that he will be just beaten by a horse whose qualifications have hitherto been completely overlooked. My final selection is one that perhaps will not be acceptable to the majority of my readers, but as I am in possession of the most exclusive information, I have no hesitation in placing the three horses in this order:

- 1—Don Pero.
- 2—Windemere.
- 3—Nervine.

I was just thinking about starting when the chief sent for me.

"What does this mean, Mr. Goodman?" he said, as I entered the room. "This," evidently referring to my M.S., which he held in his hand.

"Are you referring to my Derby tip, sir?" I asked.

"Yes; I am. Surely you can find a better horse than Don Pero?"

"Not to beat it," I said.

"But it's a fifty to one chance!"

"I can't help that," I replied, rather bauntfully, perhaps; "but I am assured that he is bound to win."

"Assured? By whom, pray?"

"Pardon me," I answered, "but my information is obtained from a strictly private source. I'll alter the wording of the paragraph, if you like, but I should prefer that it goes in as it is."

"I have no wish to interfere in your department," replied the chief. "Let it stand, if you are sweet upon it. If he comes off, it will be all right. If not, well, we shall be the laughing stock of everybody, from the Jockey club down to the youngest Newmarket tout."

I did not think that it was worth while having an argument about the matter, so took the opportunity of closing the interview and took a cab to Waterloo. When I reached the course I made the best of my way to the paddock in the hope of seeing Dixey and having a talk with him before racing began, but he was nowhere axed determination upon his boyish face.

"Now, they're off," is the cry. No, it is a false report. The favorite has broken away. His supporters standing around me are quivering with excitement, and many of them gave vent to audible groans.

The horses face the starter once more and in another minute we see the white flag fall, and know that they have been dispatched on their fateful journey.

In the first part of the race they seem to be all together, but as they near Tattenham corner, the favorite begins to steal ahead. I looked for Don Pero—he is nearly last. The corner is turned with Windemere well in front.

"The favorite wins! The favorite romps home!" is the cry on all hands.

But what is that steadily creeping up on the outside? As I live it is Don Pero! But, stay! The favorite appears to be holding his own as the horses race into the straight. But Don Pero will not be shaken off and he gradually bears the leader down, down, as they near home.

"The favorite! The favorite!" is the cry that rings in my ears. Ten thousand voices seem to be concentrated into one gigantic roar as the horses reach the winning post and the blue band of the turf is once more won.

It is doubtful to tell from where we are standing which horse has won, but it appears to be the favorite, although Don Pero was extremely close up. At length the numbers appear on the telegraph board:

I could hardly believe my eyes. Sixteen is Don Pero's number, 21 Windemere's, and four that of another outsider.

There was a deadly silence all around. No enthusiasm, no shouting, no jubilation of any kind. Blank despair is plainly written on the majority of faces near me. Then one of my colleagues turned to me:

"What does it mean, Goody? You are evidently in the know."

"It means," I said, determined to have my revenge upon him, "that if you want to get a correct tip you must come to me," and with that parting shot I hastened to the paddock, where boys she knew to be honorable; the other allowed her son the privilege of choosing his own associates. She believed he chose only the best. Alas, for misplaced confidence!

This subject of associates for our children is one that should concern every mother. ### The Farm-Home Lawn.

There are but few things which, at small expense, add so much to the appearance of a farm-home as a well-kept lawn. In order that it may aid materially in beautifying the place, it is not necessary that the lawn be either large in area or elaborate in design. It may be very small and very simple, yet if it is kept clean, and the grass short and even, it will greatly add to the attractiveness of the home to which it belongs. Such a lawn almost any farmer can have simply by taking care of it. The beauty of the lawn itself, to say nothing of the improved appearance of the farm, will pay most liberally for the little time and labor required to keep it in good condition.—Rural World.

System in Road Repairing.

Keeping up repairs at the proper level will continually shape the road bed, and one load of gravel will do the work more than ten loads as heretofore dumped in the center. The usual custom upon well-kept roads is the constant employment of one man with tools and wheelbarrow or hand cart, at $1.25 per day—calculating the working days possible in a year as 240 days—to every five miles of pike.—Dayton (O.) Herald.

Here in Ottawa

Irresistible Proof That There is a Cure for Diabetes.

The following sworn statement is the best proof that diabetes is not incurable, and that there is a remedy which will cure it.

Ottawa, County of Carleton, to wit:

I, Charles Moss, of the City of Ottawa, in the County of Carleton, Blacksmith, do hereby solemnly declare as follows:

1. I reside at 180 Bell Street, in the said City of Ottawa.
2. For the past fifteen years I have been a great sufferer from kidney disease; among the prominent symptoms of which were severe pains in my back, hot flashes extending from the base of the spine up between my shoulders, dizziness, headaches, etc. I was in a bad state generally and suffered great agony at times. The intense pain prevented my sleeping, and I seemed to get worse continually. The doctors who were called in pronounced my disease diabetes, but their treatment did no good, and they held out but slight hope of my recovery. I was then so far gone with the disease that I could not turn in bed without help. My urine was of a dark wine color, and full of sediment.
3. I took all kinds of medicine, but without permanent relief.
4. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills I got a box at H. P. MacCarthy's drug store, but having been so often disappointed I had no faith in them. However, I started taking them, and they struck the right spot at once, and I commenced to get better. From that time on improvement was continuous until I am now, after five weeks use of Doan's Kidney Pills, entirely free from pain of any kind. The urine is natural, and I am now working right along every day in my shop.
5. It is a great source of pleasure for me to testify to the world of the curative powers of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing it to be true, and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath and by virtue of the Canada Evidence Act.

"Your lawn is beautiful, Mr. Wilkins—it's just like a carpet," said the visitor.
"Indeed it is," said Wilkins, proudly. "Why, our hired man the other day in a fit of absent-mindedness got out the carpet-sweeper to sweep it instead of the lawn mower."

"And is Jennie thorough in her work?" asked Mrs. Jarley of Mrs. Perkins, having reference to a would-be waitress.
"Very," said Mrs. Perkins. "When she broke one of my royal Worcester soup plates she really didn't appear grieved until she had broken the other eleven. Oh, yes, Jennie is thorough."—Harper's Bazar.

Mr. Bennett's Queer Memory.

James Gordon Bennett of the New York Herald has a strange and erratic memory, according to the San Francisco Wave. One day, having bought a number of new shirts he ordered them sent immediately to the office. The parcel duly arrived and remained there for over a year. Mr. Bennett, meantime, never putting in an appearance. Suddenly, without any notice, he rushed in one morning, evidently in a state of great perturbation. The staff concluded they were all to be discharged on the spot. Mr. Bennett excitedly asked: "Have those confounded fellows sent my shirts along?" He never even alluded to the lapse of time which had occurred since his last visit.

Riches Tell Facts.

Some of the rich ribbons show artistic effects in the combination of navy blue and dove-colored.

From the cheapest serge to the handsomest of velvet black goods will be worn this fall in heavy, medium and transparent weights.

Few black, close-fitting cloth jackets are seen. They are generally light tan color. Box sacques will grow in favor as the season advances.

Sleeveless jackets are a rage in Paris and are becoming popular here. They are finished with epaulets of lace and Artistic fil embroidery.

Velvet, satin, taffeta, moire, brocade, chiffon, net, mosseline, gauze, cheviot, serge, Eudora; mohair, broadcloth, camel's-hair fabrics, and many other fancy dress goods will be worn in solid and figured effects.

Her Mouth Like an Elephant's.

It is said that a certain well-known portrait painter has almost as great a reputation for joking as for taking excellent likenesses. One evening he was speaking of a beautiful young girl whose portrait he had just finished: "Her features are exquisitely molded. I have heard," said a lady who had seen neither the portrait nor its original. "Beautiful forehead and eyes," returned the artist, concisely, "handsome nose, fine chin, but mouth like an elephant's." "Mouth like an elephant's!" echoed the lady in dismay. "What a terrible misfortune. Do you mean that it is so enormous and—what do you mean?" "Only that it is filled with superb ivory," returned the artist, with his usual gravity.—London Tit-Bits.

Market Lambs Quickly.

One point is clearly settled in the sheep business, viz., the advantage in marketing at an early age. Lambs have a decided advantage over yearlings both in selling value and cost of production, so that all mutton should go to market under present conditions in the form of well-ripened lambs, except such as it may be necessary to hold longer for breeding purposes. The lamb sells for nearly a dollar a hundred more than the mature sheep, and makes gain at about one-third less expense. This difference is so marked that it is the cause of considerable distinction in lambs of different size.—Colman's Rural World.

An Effective Disguise.

"They say Bessy's girl did not recognize him when he called the other night."
"No. He wore his bleveled face."

fore racing began, but he was nowhere to be seen.
I soon found out that some of my colleagues wanted to have a chat with me, for the Sporting Courier. My final in had created quite a sensation.
Jimmy Berners, the "starter," was very forcible in his language and said some very nasty things about my inability to provide the racing world with information that was of any value.
I really began to feel a bit nervous about the matter myself, for it seemed so absurd that a horse of Don Pero's caliber should have any chance of winning the classic event.
Then the horrible thought rushed through my head that the telegram was a hoax, and I felt a cold perspiration break out all over me. As a matter of fact, I did not care a brass farthing which horse won, but I knew that my reputation as a tipster was at stake. If Don Pero should finish last, as on form he undoubtedly should, then my vocation was gone, and with it perhaps my bread and cheese, to say nothing of the other luxuries. It was in no happy frame of mind that I made my way to the press box.
My entrance gave the cue for a burst of hilarity, and my reception was exceedingly warm. They chaffed me unmercifully about my unfortunate tin, but I took it all in good part, while inwardly vowing that I would fire off some of my suppressed anger upon Dixey, if his preposterous outsider finished where everybody expected him to finish—last.

The race for the Derby stakes was the next item on the card. There is no need for me to enter into any lengthy description of the event, but it is just necessary to mention one or two facts about the most sensational derby on record, and one that will never be forgotten by those who had the good fortune to witness it. The preliminary canters gave supporters of the favorite, Windmere, great cause for much gratification. He certainly looked like a grand creature, fit to run for a king's ransom.
I nervously looked around for Don Pero. Yes, he was there all right, but what an ill-favored looking animal compared with the others. His jockey, too, was merely a stable lad, but I thought that I detected a gleam of confidence in his eye and a look of come to me," and with that parting shot I hastened to the paddock, where I saw Dixey surrounded by a crowd of inquiring sportsmen. When he was liberally frog I went up to him, shook his hand and heartily congratulated him. He bore his success with equanimity, for nobody had ever yet seen Dixey put out or flurried either by success or failure.

"Thanks very much for the wire, old man," I said, in the course of the conversation.

"Wire?" he replied, with a look of surprise on his face. "What wire?"

"Why, you wired me your horse would win."

"What on earth are you talking about, Goody? I never wired to you."

"Well, I got the wire here," I said, as I felt in my pocket for it. But it was not there. I searched each pocket, but in vain. I must have left it at the office. Dixey began to laugh.

"How do you think I should have tipped such an outsider if I had not heard from you?" I asked him, almost angrily.

"Hush, not so loud," said Dixey, looking round in a half-frightened manner. "You fancy I wired to you. Quite a mistake, I assure you. I intended to do so, but I thought it would be no good. That's all, Goody, really."

I saw it all. Dixey had sent the telegram and didn't want anybody to know that he had done so. All right. I would keep his secret.

When I returned to town I went straight to the office. I looked everywhere, but could not find no trace of the telegram.

I rang for Simmons; as he entered I said:

"Simmons, have you seen the telegram that you brought me this morning?"

"Telegram, sir? I never brought you a telegram."

I gazed at him in astonishment.

"Fact, sir," he said. "No telegram came here for you this morning."

I could hardly believe my ears. There was a mistake somewhere. But I gave it up as a bad job and went off to the club. Everybody there was most enthusiastic and congratulatory. After we had settled down in the smoking-room, I told the boys the whole story. They were rather incredulous at first, until Jimmy Berner burst out: "I tell you what it is, Goody, old chap. It's a clear case of telepathy."

"But I had the telegram," I said.

"You fancied you did," was his reply; "that's part of the business. You were thinking of Dixey. Dixey was thinking of you. Dixey thought he would send you a wire. You thought you received it. That's all."

And that is the true story of how I received my "telepathic tip."—Liverpool (Eng.) Mercury.

Curling the Hair.

Curling is a process which should be undertaken most carefully. Heating with irons should be avoided as much as possible. When using them give yourself plenty of time. The hasty use of overheated irons is the cause of many short, fuzzy-looking fringes one sees. The best plan for curling the hair is to put it into curling pins over night, as the constant use of irons causes the hair to wither and snap.

It is not desirable to use curling fluids, but as it sometimes is very difficult to keep the hair in curl, especially in summer, when the forehead is apt to get damp with perspiration. It may be useful to know of the following simple preparation: Mix ten or twelve grains of carbonate of potash with a pint or more of warm soap and water. Froth the water by brisk agitation. Then dip the brush into this solution and moisten the hair with it before curling at night.

A Bicycle Dance.

An unusual achievement at a bicycle entertainment was recently recorded in one of the suburbs of London. It was dancing on bicycles and was a decided success. A set of lancers was easily and gracefully executed to appropriate music. Eight women took part in the dance, all being dressed in cream colored suits with dark red gloves and shoes, and cream straw sailor hats with red ribbons. The bikes were decorated with red carnations, which matched the shade in the costumes. Waiting and a Virginia reel followed the lancers.

A Rich Man.

They had just arrived in Brooklyn from the Island. They walked across the great bridge. As they approached the New York side they stretched their necks and viewed the massive buildings. "Oh, he must be rich," he ventured. "Who?" "The man who owns all those buildings." "One man doesn't own them all." "Oh, yes he does," she assured him. "How do you know?" he asked. "Because," she said, "his name is on them." "I guess that's so," he agreed as he looked up at a sky scraper. "Mr. Castoria must be pretty rich."—Printers' Ink.

This is For You—Read It.

On the evening of the 15th of October, the Nanapsee Council of R. T. of T. intend giving an open meeting in their hall, over Duxsee's store. An excellent programme will be provided consisting of addresses, recitations, instrumental and vocal music. It is the intention of the committee to give these meetings frequently during the winter. The Nanapsee Council is gradually increasing its membership and these meetings are given with the intention of encouraging others to become members. So come along and bring your friends on the evening of the 15th.

Worthy Your Confidence.

The success of Hood's Sarsaparilla in conquering scrofula in whatever way it may manifest itself is vouched for by thousands who were severely afflicted by this prevalent disease, but who now rejoice over a permanent cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Scrofula may appear as a humor, or it may attack the glands of the neck, or break out in dreadful running sores on the body or limbs. Attacking the mucous membrane, it may develop into catarrh or lodging in the lungs lead to consumption. Come as it may a faithful course of treatment with Hood's Sarsaparilla will overcome it, for working upon the foundation of all diseases, impure blood, the system is clarified and vitalized, and vigor, strength and health restored to the body.

A Surprise Indeed.

From what we hear there is a great surprise in store for the people of Canada this autumn. The Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, has secured that magnificent picture entitled "The Orphan's Prayer," and it is to be this season's premium. Nobody who has seen "The Orphan's Prayer" ever for one moment believed that it could or ever would be secured by a newspaper as a presentation plate, but this is an age of veritable wonders. It is no exaggeration to say that the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, is known in this country and in the United States and Europe for two characteristics especially—for the marvellous excellence of the paper itself, which is a surprise even to publishers, and for its magnificent premiums. It is safe to say too that Family Herald and Weekly Star premiums decorate tens of thousands of the best homes in this and the Old Country. Now comes the crowning subject, "The Orphan's

Highly Honored.

The Toronto World, which is being so brightly managed by Herbert Burrows, of Nanapsee, finds that its large circulation requires greater press facilities, and an order for a new press has been given to a New York house. It will print from 15,000 to 30,000 copies an hour, according to the size of the paper, and the demands for The World, which have become very large all over Canada, will thus be satisfied. Mr. Burrows is a son of our townsman, Mr. F. Burrows, school inspector for the county of Lennox and Addington, and a brother of Dr. Burrows, of Marlbank.

Coffee Drunkards.

Dr. Mendel, of Berlin, says the leading symptoms of coffee drinkers are profound depression of spirits, frequent headaches with insomnia. A strong dose of coffee will relieve, then the ailment returns, the muscles become weak and the hands tremble when at rest. The victims suffer so severely they dare not abandon the drinking of coffee for fear of death. Dr. Mendel had under his constant observation a community of coffee drinkers in and about Essex. Madden Cereal, the new grain coffee, had just the opposite effect and should be used instead of coffee. It is cheaper and can be purchased from any grocer.

More Strictly Yet.

Those people who affect horror at the Ontario Marriage Act requiring declarations from both intending bride and groom and the appearance of both of them before the issuer of marriage licenses, will be surprised to learn that in New York State much more stringent regulations are in force. The act provides that "No license for any marriage shall hereafter be issued to which any citizen of a foreign country shall be a party until a Minister or a Consul representing such foreign country in the United States shall certify that the conditions to the validity of the marriage laws of such country shall have been complied with." Then in addition to the license fee to be paid by the applicant, each person solemnizing a marriage must pay to the State a fee of $5. The New York press a few days ago related the amusing story of an official new to the business who accepted $2 as his fee and was obliged to contribute the balance of the $5 claimed by the State out of his own pocket.

MATRIMONIAL

SCOTT—HARMER.

A very pretty wedding occurred on Monday evening last at the residence of the bride's cousin, Mr. Massey, 77 Colborne street, Kingston, when Mr. Fred S. Scott, son of M. W. Scott, was united in marriage to Miss Ruth Harmer, daughter of James Harmer, both of Nanapsee. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Macgillivray, and the bride looked very charming in a costume of white silk trimmed with deep lace. The wedding presents were numerous and we join with their many friends in wishing them all happiness in their venture upon the sea of matrimony.

Next Wednesday.

The Brockville Recorder, Oct. 6th, says of the Monkey theatre, which exhibits at the Brisco Opera house, on Wednesday afternoon and evening, Oct. 14th: "All the good things said and written in advance of Somerby's Monkey theatre were amply borne out at the first appearance in Brockville last night of that noted attraction. The performance was given at the opera house and despite counter attractions was witnessed by more than an average sized audience. Previous to the curtain going up Prof. Wormwood briefly addressed the audience regarding the treatment and training of dumb animals, asserting that the fundamental principle of success was kindness. Five minutes a day, he said, devoted to the training of a dog, would soon place the animal in the same condition as those under his charge. Of the performance itself it is unnecessary to speak other than to say that it was not only wonderful, but decidedly pleasing. The monkeys were all appropriately costumed and exhibited remarkable intelligence and docility. There was an avalanche of fun from start to finish, the "Monks" appearing as acrobats, dancers, actors, bicyclists, tight rope walkers, etc., in a way which seemed to indicate their delight in the performance. There are also a large number of dogs, including pug terriers, Newfoundlanders, greyhounds, skyes, etc., and these too attempted and accomplished many difficult feats. Two rare animals, a badger and an antester, were likewise introduced. Taken as a whole the performance is one which should be seen by young and old, as nothing like has ever before been attempted, much less accomplished. A pleasing feature between acts was the appearance of Prof. Wells, a musical marvel, who, in the garb of a tramp, introduced some novel instruments. His performance on the saxophone was particularly creditable."

Boring for Oil.

All is bustle and excitement in and about Fredericksburgh, occasioned by the fact that a test well is to be put down on the farm of I. H. Schell, with a view to the discovery of gas or oil. In order to begin aught it will be necessary to give a short review of the case. It is now about a year since Mr. Schell, in digging a well beside his house, struck a strong salt and mineral vein at a depth of 12 feet or thereabouts. At this time bubbles were noticed coming up through the water in the drill hole, which, on further examination, proved to be gas. It came in such volume that when burning it was so hot men could not work, and when not burning it was almost stifling and thus work ceased. It was burning continuously for a period of two weeks, when a rise of water prevented a steady flow. One day, out of curiosity, a pot of potatoes were boiled perfectly in a few minutes at the bottom of the well by the burning gas. Mr. Schell began communicating with parties skilled in such matters with a view to taking up and investigating it. He has secured the assistance of those who now purpose thoroughly testing the matter. Experts examined the premises, and as a result B. C. Steele, representing American capitalists, prospecting for oil near Verona, has become sufficiently interested to take the matter in hand and assume the direction of affairs in connection therewith. The gas and petroleum right is now controlled by the company through lease on a large quantity of land in the vicinity. Already a portion of the material used at High Falls, near Verona, has been taken up and removed here. Saturday afternoon a large seven-ton boiler arrived on the ground. A large building to enclose the necessary machinery will at once be erected near the site of the well previously mentioned. The building will be necessarily large, being divided off into a series of rooms adjoining each other as required for a boiler room, engine room, belt room and drilling room. In all about ninety feet in length and varying in width as the different compartments require. Perhaps a better idea may be gained from the fact that it is estimated that 17,000 feet of material will be required in its construction. The derrick will be seventy-two feet high, drilling a well eight inches in diameter. The workmen are busily engaged on the work, which will be pushed energetically. It is intended to put a double gang of drillers for night and day to expedite the work, which will be prosecuted with due diligence, and we trust will ultimately reward its projectors handsomely for the enterprise thus shown—Whig.

went to her assistance. She was taken to Mr. Gordanier's, where she resides during week days, in an unconscious state, and Drs. Ward, Meacham, and Maybee were soon in attendance. It is supposed she fell from her wheel in a fainting fit. Her nose bled copiously which led some to suppose she had received a severe cut in the face, which is not the case. From the time of the accident until Thursday morning Miss Neilson was in an unconscious state. A partial recovery was then noticeable.

Best Game of the Season.

A game of baseball was scheduled to have been played on Saturday afternoon last between the Printers, of Nanapanee, and the Sentinels, of Sillsville and surrounding villages, but the latter failed to put in an appearance, much to the disappointment of the Printers and the large crowd of ladies and gentlemen present. However, an interesting game was played between two picked teams, viz: the Ins and Outs, composed of Cricketers, Printers and some boys from the town. Without any exception it was the best game of ball played here this season, and it plainly showed that the practice the boys have had lately has gone far to make them more perfect in the art. The game was not called until after 3 o'clock, the Ins going first to bat. Sheffield was the first to face Pitcher Armstrong, and he lined the ball out for one base, stole second and came home on Root's three-bagger, being the only one to cross the plate before the side was retired. The Outs then went to bat and their efforts were rewarded by three runs. The second innings was about the same except the score being reversed, Ins 3 runs, Outs 1 run. Ham making an elegant hit to centre field, getting two bases and bringing in two runs. The third innings was opened with Root at bat, making a hit to centre field, followed by Gates who knocked the sphere over right field, making two bases. Vandalstine followed on with a cracker-jack drive over center fielder's head, scoring Root and Gates, the side being retired for two runs. The Outs in the second half scored three runs, making the score 7 to 6 in their favor. The fourth was opened with Sheffield at bat, who again hit safely for one base, Root making another three-bagger, scoring Sheffield and Livesley, and scoring on Gates' sacrifice, and the side was retired for 3 runs. The last half resulted in a whitewash for the Outs, leaving the score 9 to 7 in favor of the Ins. In the fifth innings the umpire took part in the game, and some decisions were given that used to rule the game when our grandfathers played ball, much to the chagrin of the Ins. Still as it was only a friendly game for fun, the kicking did not last very long on the several occasions, as the umpire ruled the game in each and every instance in his genial way that every one finally gave way to him. The latter part of the game was a series of whitewashes for the Ins, the side being retired for the following after the fourth innings: 2 0 0 1 0, and the Outs scoring 3 2 7 2 x, winning the game by a score of 21 to 12. Following is the score:

Time of game—Two hours.
Umpire—Mr. Alex. Laferriere.

NOTES.
Livesley played his usual fine game on first, as also did Daly.
Rev. W. W. Peck is a very enthusiastic baseball player and always plays a careful and steady game.
Three-baggers were made by Coates and Root, and two-baggers by Daly, Vandalstine, Ham, Peck and Livesley.
Bain, Gates, Vandalstine, Trimble and Ham gathered in some nice long fly catches and put up a good game in general.
Trimble did the twirling for the Ins and put up an excellent game, striking out 11. Hayes did the pitching for the Outs, and it took a quick eye to connect with his curves (?)
Some of the boys are trying to get on a game with Newburgh to wind up the season with, as the weather is getting rather cold for baseball. If arrangements can be made for a game at an early date, a team will be chosen from the best players in town, and an excellent game may be looked forward to, as Newburgh has a reputation already and Nanapanee has the material to build one.

When Glasses

Ought to be used and those in use abandoned: First—When we are obliged to remove small objects to a considerable distance from the eye in order to see them distinctly. Second—If we find it necessary to get more light than formerly, as, for instance, to place the light between the eye and the object. Third—If looking at and considering a near object it becomes confused and appears to have a kind of mist before it. Fourth—When the letters of a book run one into the other and hence appear double. Fifth—If the eyes are so fatigued by a little exercise that we are obliged to shut them from time to time and relieve them by looking at different objects. Sixth—If troubled a great deal with headache. The above can be scientifically attended to by A. F. Chinneck, graduate optician, at F. Chinneck's Jewelry Store.

OBITUARY.

MARIA SCALES

Deceased was born in the year 1816 at Berwick-on-Tweed, on the English side of this noted burg, and was a daughter of Major McDonald, of the English army. He sold his commission and came to Canada about 1830, and located at first in Toronto, afterwards on the now-called Portage farm between Napanee and Deseronto. Mrs. Scales was married in Toronto to her late husband, Thomas Scales, by the late Archdeacon Strachan, about the year 1836. She had several children, of whom only one lived to maturity—the late Mrs. Jno. T. Grange. There is a brother of Mrs. Scales living at Ox Point and a sister named Mrs. Mack, whose husband is dead, residing at Mount Pleasant, Iowa. Mr. Thomas Scales died about the year 1854. Since the marriage of her daughter Mrs. Scales has resided with her son-in-law Mr. Jno. T. Grange, at whose house she passed peacefully away on Saturday evening last. The funeral services were conducted at the house and the Church of S. Mary Magdalene, by the Rev. Arthur Jarvis. The deceased had a good memory to the last, and was fond of telling of old times and recounting old experiences, and in the eighty years of an active life, a good many things worth retelling had happened. On her eightieth birthday Mrs. Scales attended confectionery business lately carried on by W. H. Davis, solicits a continuance of the patronage bestowed upon his predecessor, and assures the public that everything will be first class, Oysters arriving daily. Fine stock of cream rolls and meat pies on Saturday.

Fatal Accident.

While a couple of boys were playing on the railway track at the Napanee station, one of them was run over and killed by a freight train from the west, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. From what we can learn the deceased, named Johnny O'Rourke, aged about 13 years, was trying to jump from the freight when his foot caught and losing his balance he fell between the cars, and the train ran over him cutting him in two.

Jerusalem.

A very interesting lecture on Jerusalem, ancient and modern, was delivered in the basement of the church of S. Mary Magdalene, on Wednesday evening last, by Mr. Jacob Khadder, a native of Jerusalem, and a student of King's college, Nova Scotia. Everyone present was delighted with the lecture and pleased with the illustrations. A number of townspeople were arrayed in costumes provided by the lecturer, to represent some of the prominent characters which were described. Mr. Khadder sang several songs in Arabic, and accompanied himself on the violin. Following is a list of the characters presented:

Mr. Jarvis.....	Priest
Mr. Hamel Deroche.....	Jerusalem Merchant
Miss Baxter.....	Bedouin Lady
Mr. Swayne.....	Bedouin
Miss Wright.....	Jerusalem Lady
Mr. F. Rutan.....	Rabbi
Mr. Morley Wilson.....	Dervish
Miss Morphy.....	Lady of Joppa
Mr. Walters.....	Nazarene
Mr. Lockwood.....	Samaritan
Miss Bartlett.....	Lady of Nazareth
Miss Pollard.....	Bride and groom
Mr. Chinneck.....	of Bethlehem

A Very Pretty Wedding.

There was quite a flutter of excitement at the Methodist parsonage last Wednesday morning, when Mr. Geo. E. Deroche, a popular young barrister of Deseronto, was united in marriage to Miss Bertha Eveline McCulloch, eldest daughter of the Rev. R. McCulloch of Newburgh. Mr. G. E. Deroche is a nephew of H. M. Deroche, Q. C., ex M. P. P., head of the well known law firm of "Deroche & Madden," Napanee. George was called to the bar a year ago last September and is rapidly rising to a front place in his profession. The bride was attired in a beautiful white silk dress, and was very much admired by all. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, who also gave away the bride. H. W. Gundy, of Toronto, and Miss Ella McCulloch ably performed the duties of groomsmen and bridesmaid. The company was a very select one, and the wedding breakfast was everything that could be desired. Very congratulatory addresses were made by H. M. Deroche, J. H. Madden, H. W. Gundy and Revs. J. M. Whyte and R. McCulloch. The happy couple took the 10 o'clock train at Napanee for Boston, then they intend to take an ocean voyage to Baltimore, Md., thence to Philadelphia and New York. They will be gone between two and three weeks. The happy couple drove away from Newburgh amid showers of rice and good wishes. The following sent very useful and some of them very costly presents: Mrs. P. Deroche, Mr. and Mrs. J. Shorey, Misses E. and C. Shorey, Mrs. Benn, Mrs. Schriver, Miss P. Burdette, Miss H. Burdette, Miss E. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Courtney, Mrs. and Miss Lott, E. G. Madden, all of Newburgh; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Madden, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Deroche and Miss Deroche, Mr. W. P. Deroche, Napanee; Rev. Geo. and Mr. McCulloch, Richmond Hill; Mr. and Mrs. D. McCulloch, Enfield; Mr. and Mrs. James McCulloch, Prince Albert; Miss Gertrude Hawkins, Welland; Prof. and Mrs. John Burwash, of Victoria University; Dr. J. T. Gilmore, warden of the Central prison, Toronto; Rev. R. and Mrs. McCulloch, the groom and Mrs. T. G. Pile, Deseronto; Ella McCulloch, E. A. and R. J. P. McCulloch, Newburgh; Mrs. Deroche, the Misses Deroche and Master Ned Deroche, Kingston; G. B. Henwood, B. A., Miss Henwood, B. A., and W. H. and Mrs. Parsons, Port Hope; Mrs. J. Swanzy and W. Gundy, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Ettinger, Miss Carrie Hawkins, Bowmanville; Miss M. J. Elliott, Hampton.

Diamond Dyes Guarantee Success and Satisfaction.

Many people go to the city or town dye-house when they have goods to be dyed.

This means a loss of time and much unnecessary expense. Ninety-nine out of every one hundred women can do their own dyeing at home with Diamond Dyes; at an expense of ten or twenty cents for what the professional will charge them $1.50 to $2.00. Home dyeing means a saving of time and much annoyance, as the professional dyer often puts the work aside for a week or ten days.

All difficulties are avoided by using Diamond Dyes in your home. The plain directions for each color make good results absolutely certain. There is a standing guarantee that Diamond Dyes will color more goods, package for package, than any other dyes in the world, and will always give the best and strongest colors.

When buying Dyes, avoid all imitation package dyes that your dealer may offer you; take only the "Diamond," and you will be crowned with success.

Send for our Diamond Dye Cook Book, free to any address. Wells and Richardson Co., Montreal.
